The City of MENOMONIE Welcomes You!

The City of Menomonie welcomes you. This invitation includes particular recognition of two groups in our community. They are the members of our armed forces who served in World War II and our old settlers.

One hundred years of history of the Red Cedar Valley is woven into the fabric of this welcome. The very name of our city has a pertinent meaning. It is derived from Mahnomen, the Indian word for the wild rice which in 1846 grew and yielded abundantly in the flats now flooded by our Lake Menomin. The abundance of this sustenance for the Indian is symbolic of the abundance that was in store for our forefathers and ourselves.

Nature's effort can be described only in the superlative when it completed the creation that met the first comers in the valley of the Red Cedar. This river was a natural roadway reaching into a paradise of beauty and undeveloped wealth. On the valley bottom and on the hills on both sides of this river grew a forest of timber seemingly inexhaustible in a soil of great fertility.

To this valley came the pioneers in the first half of the Nineteenth Century. These pioneers and their descendants were fur traders, lumbermen, farmers, industrialists and educators. The first family home was established at the junction of the Red Cedar River and Wilson Creek on July 4, 1846. On that site these pioneers and their descendants built this, our City of Menomonie.

They built more than material values. Upon a foundation of character they built and produced a community of citizens worthy of the designation—Americans.

The two groups to which we extend this particular welcome and recognition today are the product of this century and this community. Our pride in both groups is unlimited. There is, however, a tinge of sadness to our welcome as we contemplate those who have not returned from the war. This sorrow only emphasizes the sincerity of our welcome.

The efforts and sacrifices of both the members of our armed forces and the pioneers should light us to a better day and a better world on the shores of Lake Menomin.

Welcome Home,

Ira O. Slocumb

Dedication

In this, our 100th Year, we pause to pay tribute to our men and boys who made the supreme sacrifice during World War II; a sacrifice that Menomone and all other hamlets and cities may penetrate the future in the same spirit, with the same sense of security that we have emerged from the past.

While the wheels of progress are silent in solemn tribute, we wish to take this opportunity to pay due homage to the Gold Star Mothers, and to the Fathers who gave sons, for their heart-rending contribution to freedom.

To all men and women who fought for their Country, we offer a proud salute. To those still gracing the uniform, we are grateful for what you are doing, and wish you a speedy return.

In retrospect, we thank the sturdy pioneer, whose stout heart and unfailing vision, has transformed this city from a scene of virgin forests to a lumber capital, to an agricultural center, to an education utopia, and to the industrial city it is today.

To them, this memento is dedicated.

PROLOGUE SALUTE TO AMERICA

In a spectacular and hyperchromatic opening the Parade of Colors presents, amid a fanfare of trumpets and the blare of martial music, Miss Universal Peace with her attendants, Miss North America, Miss South America, Miss Europe, Miss Asia, Miss Africa, Miss Australia, who take their places of honor to observe as a symbol of unity and peaceful cooperation, the Red, White and Blue Ballet in precision drill. The colorful opening comes to a climax with attention focused on "Old Glory" honored by a Color Guard. The Red, White and Blue formations salute the flag with their banners during the Pledge of Allegiance. A vested choir sings "America."

EPISODE I. IN THE BEGINNING

"In the Beginning God Created Heaven and Earth," and He worked in wondrous and mysterious ways. To our knowledge, no man was there to witness the miracle; so any conclusions that have been formed are resultant of a conglomeration of facts expounded upon by astronomers, philosophers and geologists. At one time it is said, the region was of torrid temperature; then came the seven great ice glaciers. Then followed the ages of swamps and dense forests whereon roamed many wild animals.

EPISODE II. INTO THE LIVES OF THE RED MEN

No one knows when the first men came to America or from where they came. Some believe that Alaska was then joined to Asia and that Europe and America were once united by a narrow ridge. No one knows definitely, but this much is certain: when Leif, the son of Eric, came over from Greenland about the year 1000, he found red men already in possession of the country.

Probably the first white men in the Menomonie Valley were servants and agents of LaSalle as early as 1691. By 1737, there was a semi-yearly rendezvous of fur traders in the region of Prairie du Chien; and by 1781 there was a permanent abode of settlers.

Jonathan Carver was the first Englishman to make a journey through this region and he is the first person for whom a claim of proprietorship of the site of Menomonie is made. The deed Carver held in his possession was supposedly given to him by two Sioux chiefs covering lands in Wisconsin including Dunn County. The site of Menomonie has been claimed by France, Great Britain, the United States and many Indian tribes, but Carver was the first to have made private claim of ownership.

For over a half century between LeSeur and Carver there are no direct accounts of travelers or settlers.

EPISODE III. EARLY LUMBERING OPERATIONS

Harding Perkins, backed by Lockwood and Rollette, rival fur traders, erected a sawmill at the confluence of Meadow Creek (Wilson Creek), and the Red Cedar or Menomonie River, the present site of the City of Menomonie. Then in 1829 a military expedition under the command of Lieut. Levin Gale started logging operations with the purpose of securing logs and timber for the defense of Fort Crawford.

The way of the first mill built by Perkins was paved by Lockwood and Rollette who obtained permission from Major Taliaferro, then agent for the Sioux with consent of the Indians, to erect a sawmill on their land of the Chippewa River and tributaries for about $1,000 a year in goods. The lumber business flourished until a sudden freshet swept away the dam, mill and appendages.

EPISODE IV.

COUNTY CREATED AND RECORDS DESTROYED

In the year 1846 began the new era in Dunn County. Captain William Wilson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. John Vail and Mr. and Mrs. Jason Ball were the four families residing in Menomonie in 1846. The Federal census in 1860 gave Dunn County but 2704 population.

Dunn County was created in 1854 when the Legislature provided for a general election to take place in 1854. In those days when the County was established and there was no organized town, the County was treated as a town, and other than county officers, there were no town supervisors elected. So it was that William Wilson, J. McCain and William Carson were elected the first town supervisors in 1856.

Yes, all was going well in the area in the 1850's . . . the political organization was working efficiently. William Wilson had interested John Knapp in the possibilities of the wilds of the Chippewa Valley which resulted in the town men forming a partnership for lumbering operations in the Chippewa Valley. Though these men were not the actual pioneers in the lumber business, their enterprise far out-shadowed the others' attempts. In the 1870's it was said that Knapp, Stout and Company was the greatest lumber corporation in the world.

In 1858 the occupied section of Menomonie was on the north side of the river. The Wisconsin Milling Company's office now stands where the first cabin was built in 1822. Up to 1858 there was no individual ownership of lands or of houses. The lumber company owned everything. But after building mills, bridges, etc., the lumber company, which up to that time practically was Menomonie, put lots up for sale.

EPISODE V.

THE FIRST WEDDING

Yes, the advent of women in this valley changed the area from one of exploration, lumbering, and trading posts to permanent settlements. The institution of marriage, the rearing of children . . . families in Dunn County . . . and the future of Menomonie was insured.

One of the early business men of Menomonie was Samuel B. French who arrived in the village in 1853 to work as bookkeeper for Knapp, Stout & Co. In 1855, he was married to Mary Virginia Bullard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Bullard, who were among the very early settlers of this area.

Henry L. Stout, born Oct. 23, 1814, at Ringoes, N. J.—Died July 17, 1900.

John Holly Knapp, Jr., born at Elmira, N. Y., March 29, 1825. He died Oct. 14, 1888, in Menomonie.

Captain Andrew Tainter, born at Selina, N. Y., July 6, 1823. He died at Rice Lake, Wis., Oct. 18, 1899.

Captain William Wilson, born at Pine Creek, Pa., Feb. 9, 1807. He died in Menomonie, Wis., Sept. 4, 1892.

EPISODE VI.

THE MASQUE OF NATIONS

As in all other sections, many and varied nationalities comprised the population of Menomonie. Young America was a melting pot of the old countries, peoples who had sought freedom in the new world . . . freedom of enterprise, freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of life itself. So to Menomonie came the hard-working Canadians, the gay French, the stoic English, the conservative Germans, the industrious Norwegians and Swedes, the vivacious Irishmen and the courageous Americans. Menomonie's success as a lumbering community, a dairy center, an agricultural hub, a brick-making locale . . . all were and are dependent upon the diversified nationalities that make up modern Menomonie.

EPISODE VII.

EARLY SCHOOLING IN MENOMONIE

The first schoolhouse in Menomonie was a private one erected in 1852 by Knapp, Stout & Co. for the accommodation of their children and those of their neighborhood. During the winters of 1852 and 1853, Dr. Rogers taught the pupils while the Rev. Joshua M. Pittman was the instructor in 1854, 1855 and 1856. There was a regularly organized district school established in 1856, and when the village was surveyed and platted in 1859 a one room frame school house was built, which forty youngsters attended. Fire destroyed this school in 1868, but a new four room public school was completed in 1870. This construction is now a part of the high school.

EPISODE VIII.

CALL TO ARMS

In 1861 came Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers to quell disturbances being made by the southern states who threatened to secede from the Union. This settlement and surrounding district responded to the call to arms by the enlistment in the service of Aaron Vasey, William Creaser, Jr., Robert Creaser, George Kyle, John Kyle, William Magden, Samuel Dyer (the minister's son), E. W. Gurley and T. M. Robinson, who, with others from Dunn County, were recruited to fill up Company K, Fifth Wisconsin.

EPISODE IX

TRANSPORTATION DEVELOPMENTS

Another important development of Menomonie was the advent of the railroad in 1871 . . . the road known today as the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, & Omaha. Though the government had made a large land grant for a railroad years before, nothing had been done. The people realized the advantages of adequate rail transportation to a community, so there sprung up a popular movement to get the trains moving through this region. A line up the Mississippi had been built meanwhile by the Milwaukee & St. Paul Company, a partly local company, with grant in hand, made plans for a line to run from Tomah on the Milwaukee Road to Black River Falls, Eau Claire, Menomonie, and Hudson, and by 1871 the road reached the city. The following year trains were moving both ways. The proximity of Menomonie to the great railway gateways of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and to the rail and water terminals at Superior and Duluth, together with local facilities of water and rail, made an excellent opportunity for the populace to get their products to market. Menomonie was on its way to bigger and better things!

EPISODE X.

BALLET OF FERTILITY AND PRODUCTIVITY

The heavily wooded areas of this vicinity had made Dunn County one of the most productive pine supply centers, and the products of the forests and mills were easily transportable because of rail and water facilities. Dairies prospered due to fertile grazing lands and the settlers who had been schooled in their business. The prosperous young village believed in vocational education, and their enterprise and knowledge paid dividends. Agricultural produce was of the highest standard. Agricultural and industrial Menomonie was booming.

EPISODE XI.

THE EVENTFUL 1880's

In 1877 a cavalry company was formed with Thomas J. George as captain. It was called the Ludington Guard in honor of the Governor of the State at that time. Several times the company was called into duty to quell Indian disturbances. The Guard Band was formed about a year later, and became the regimental band of the Third Regiment.

During several seasons there were very heavy rains which occasioned considerable loss due to floods, but the worst of them were in 1880 and 1905. In 1880 the rains caused considerable rise of the streams, and the dams at Colfax and the Wilson Mill on Elk Creek were carried away, a number of bridges were swept away with the onrushing waters, a shingle mill was carried away at Cedar Falls, the boom went out and the bridge followed. The dam and booms of the Knapp, Stout & Co. were in great danger, but they held. Fortunately, however, the residential and business districts of Menomonie were situated on a plateau high above the water level.

EPISODE XII.

THE GAY NINETIES

The corporate members of the Knapp-Stout Lumber Company and their families invited guests to assemble in order to celebrate the semi-centennial anniversary of the beginning of this enterprise that lifted the region from trading posts to a beautiful, prosperous city. The exercises lasted all day and evening at the home of Senator James Stout. The spacious grounds were beautifully decorated for the festive occasion. A band of Chippewa Indians had pitched their tepees on the lawn as a pleasant reminder of peaceful relationships. Speeches of reminiscence were made. Music and dancing, magicians, barber shop quartets, etc., amused the beaux and belles of this happy era, who arrived on their tandem bicycles or in surreys with the proverbial fringe on top. (See photograph on page 8).

In 1905 one of the outstanding musical organizations in this section was organized . . . the Menomonie Liederkrantz. This male chorus was excellent and not only did they meet socially once a month but they entertained many places throughout the district.

The early 1900's found many social and industrial organizations being created . . . The Commercial Club, The Old Settlers' Association, The Rotary Club, The Country Club . . . many more organizations which have established good reputations in the community, and which have fulfilled many worthwhile obligations.

EPISODE XIII.

WORLD WAR I.

In 1914, Germany, seeking a "place in the sun" helped her ally Austria start the first world conflict. Unrestricted submarine warfare and German arrogance drew the United States into the struggle three years later. Americans fought well at Chateau-Thierry, in the Argonne, Belleau Woods and St. Mihiel, and participated in the victorious occupation of Germany.

EPISODE XIV

WORLD WAR II.

In 1939 Hitler attacked Poland after his bloodless victory in Czechoslovakia. The second world war was on. Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium came in 1940 to be new parts of the Reich. In the early summer came the breakthrough at Sedan, the fall of France, Britain's Dunkirk, the blitz on England, and we began to worry. Maybe this man Hitler was going to rule Europe, after all. Perhaps we should be concerned if the mighty British Empire could not stem the tide! And let us not forget the gallant Russians who gave so much.

Germany surrendered May 8th, 1945.

On August 6, the world entered a new era when atoms split above Hiroshima . . . the dreaded atomic bomb that leveled cities to the ground had struck. Russia entered the war against Japan. The pincer movement was on . . . and Japan surrendered on August 14th and signed the formal capitulation on the U. S. S. Missouri on September 2, 1945. General Douglas MacArthur was appointed the supreme commander of Japan.

Twice in the lifetime of most of us, we have fought a war to win eternal peace, to give food and security to ourselves, and the world had a second chance to help guarantee the peace. We turned our backs before because we disliked the ideals of many other nations. This time we were resolved to make the United Nations Organization succeed. This time we recognized the imperfections of our allies and enemies, and suspected some of our own. This time we know the world is too small, and the atom bomb too potent, to permit us to withdraw and go a separate way. This time we hope to show the world the superiority of our way. This time will be different.

YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW

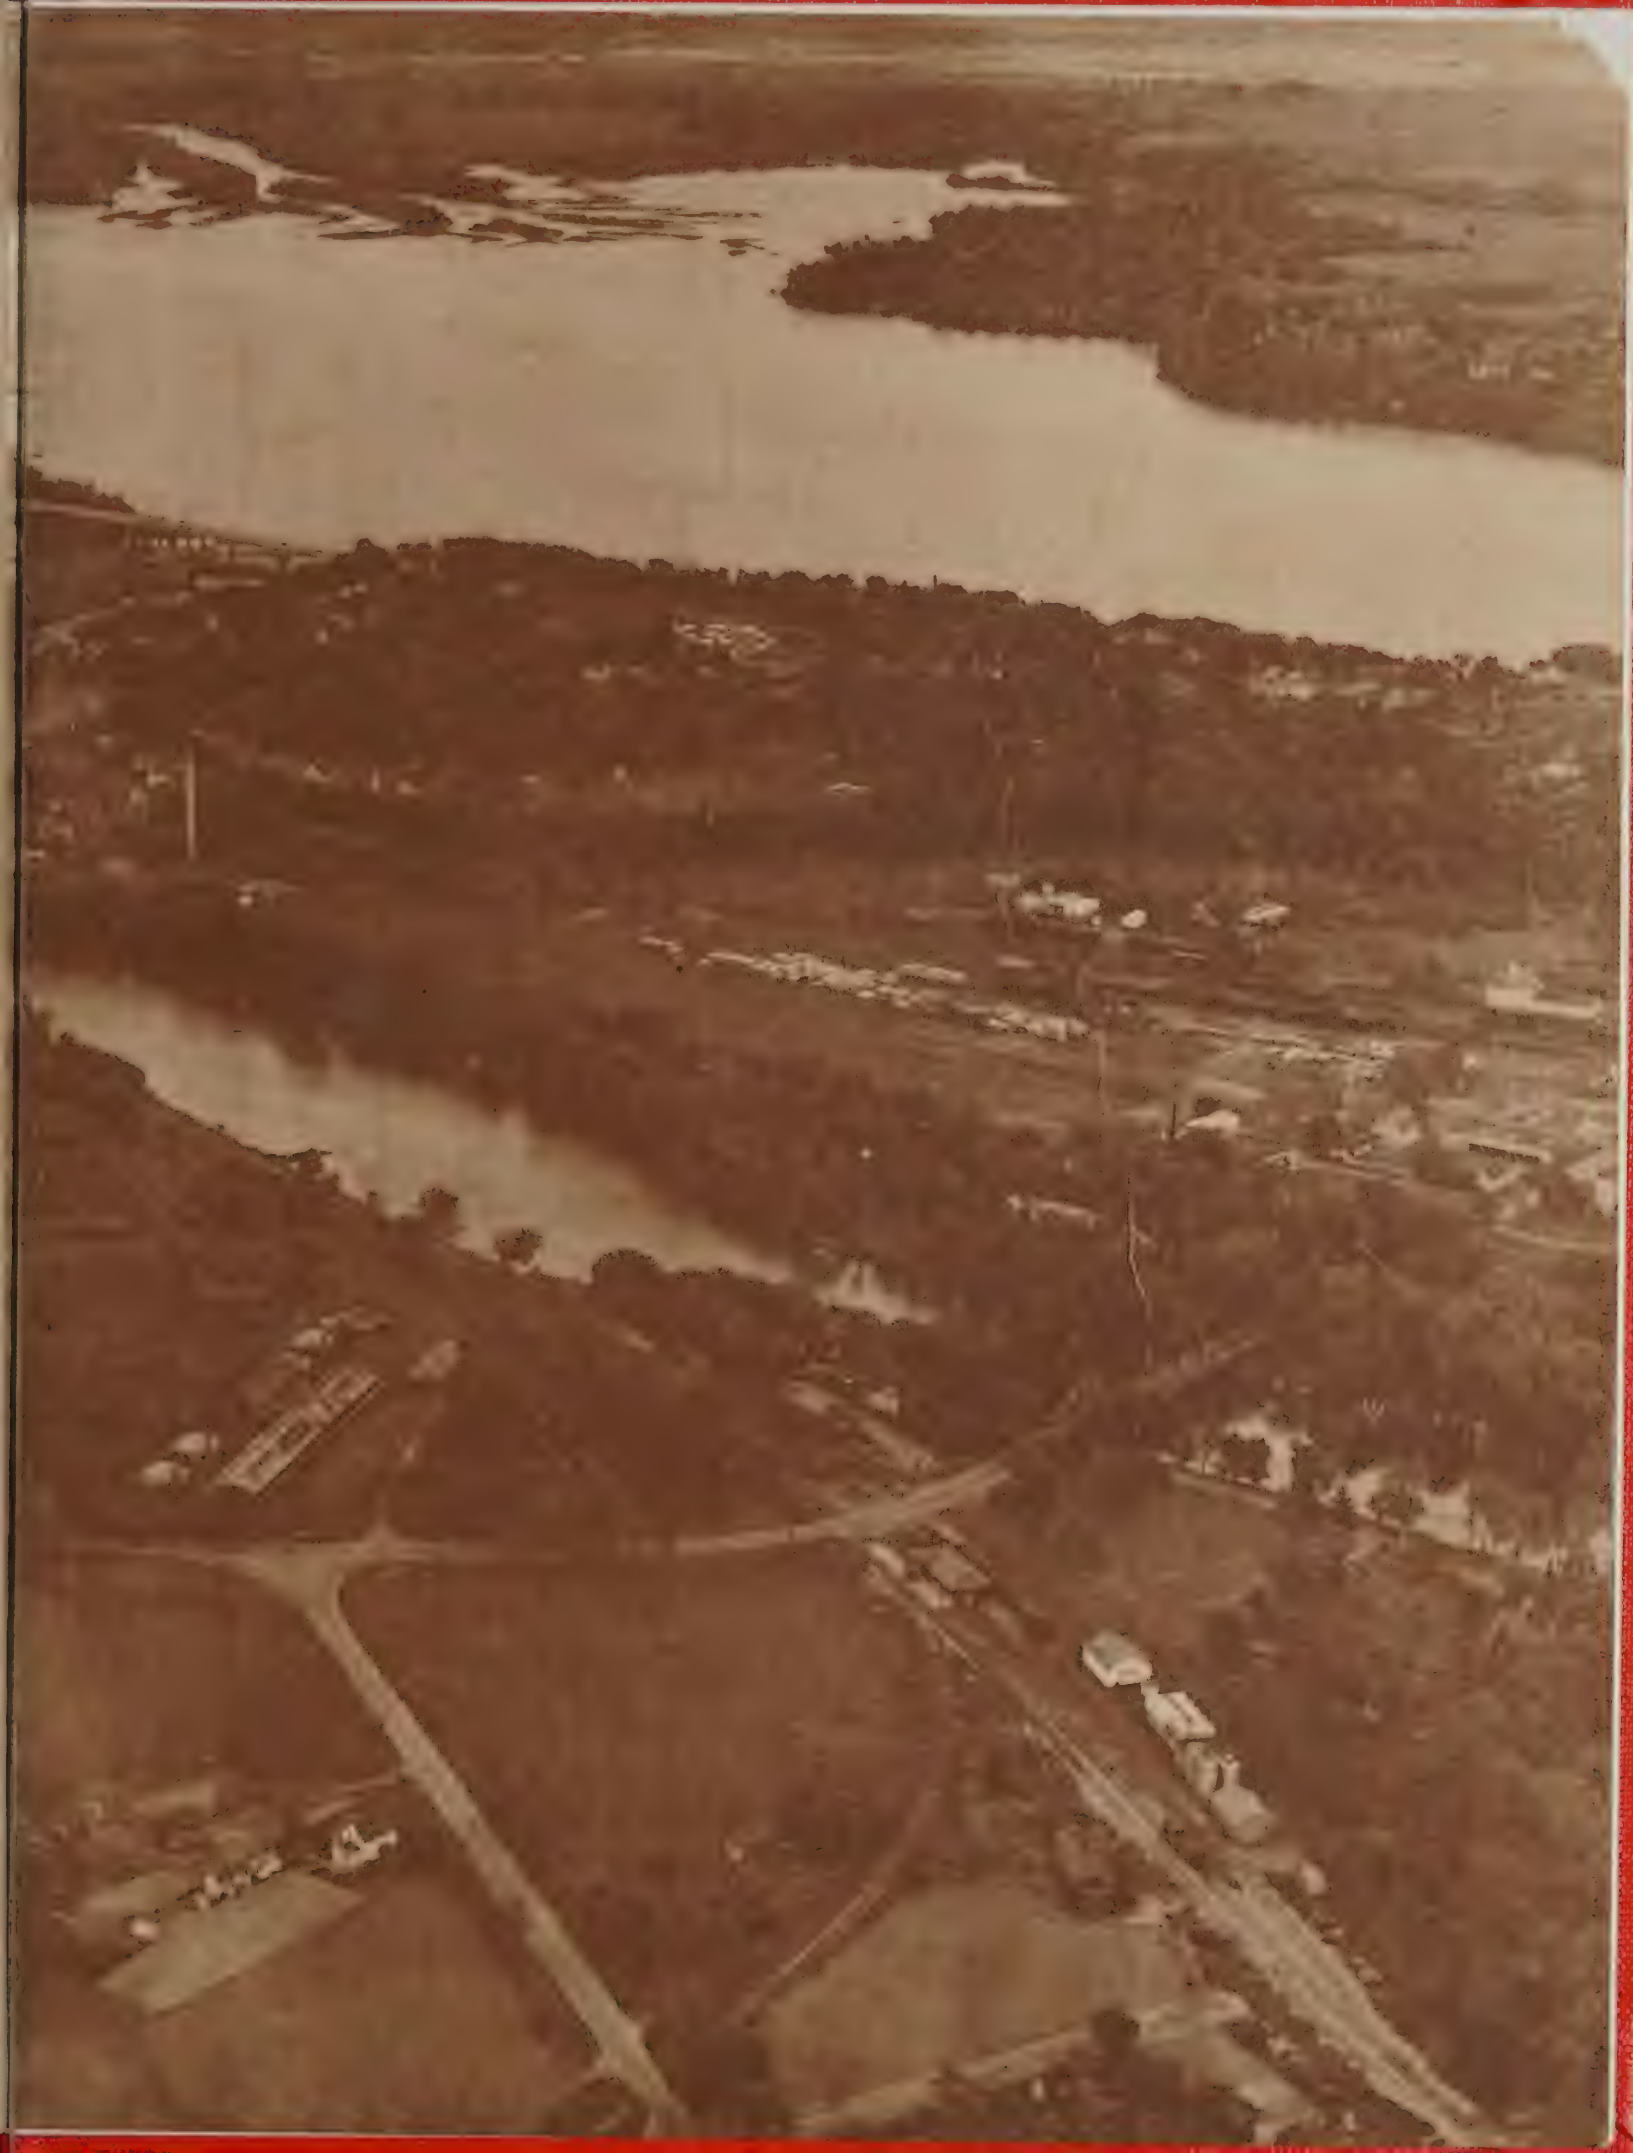

YESTERDAY—one hundred years ago, the founders of Menomonie accomplished, without any modern conveniences, the building of their homes and their mills. They toiled for good and good they received. Close to nature, close to God, even in times of the law of the survival of the fittest, they accomplished their goal. At the fifty year mark (1896), with the memories of the past hardships still fresh in their minds, all were thankful for the privilege of enjoying the semi-modernization they had at that time, and maintained the American determination to go forward.

TODAY—the law of the survival of the fittest is in its highest gear. Competition appears in almost all of the ways of mankind—relaxing only to pay respect to memories—memories our Maker recalls to us occasionally. However, through all phases and all obstacles, Menomonie still has the true American spirit to go forward.

TOMORROW—and on into the future, remembering and trying to realize that, on down the years until today, work, good-fellowship, and God's lending hand, then more work, have brought us safely to the present. Menomonie remembers its "lost industry", the lumber business, and desires to shine again in the industrial world with its marvelous schools, and its general business—far beyond the average dream. This shall be accomplished, God willing, as our American enthusiasm presses us forward.
